Green Haven is a two story masonry building which appears to date from the late 18th century. It was built as a three bay long buildin with central door and chimneys within the gables, and later a two bay extension to the south side was added on the same lines as the original house. There is also an addition on the west side of tne addition. The entire building is covered with stucco. Across the east facade is a modern enclosed porch. The house sits on a high hill above Bull Minnow Point on the Elk River. The area close to the River is a proposed waterfront development.

Behind tne house is a stone outbuilding, probably a dairy.
